

Domestic

it wasn't September
but I still dreamed in carpet

I waited until the moon slid between trees
and then scrambled
windows and chairs
in a frying pan with two tablespoons of oil until I burned everything left my carpet dreams

until the flames comforted until my house felt like marshmallows in a campfire let the wood smoke